THE MOST CHALLENGING CIRCUMSTANCES are seldom welcome, but always serve to encourage innovation and spark change. Institutions like ours will benefit from new ways of thinking and methods to advance our vision and resonance that the challenges of the past year necessitated. We at the Florence Griswold Museum embrace that this time together allows us the freedom to explore new roads ahead.

While we may not be abuzz with crowds at the moment, the Florence Griswold Museum team is as active as we have ever been. Our strategic planning process continues to flourish. Our staff is spending this time strengthening the plan with objectives and initiatives to ensure our relevance and further the stewardship of our collections and community relationships. We are pleased to take this time to attend to our operations and transition to a new integrated computer system that will assist our staff in managing our activities while making it even easier to serve you. We continue to take every opportunity to welcome you during this time, both onsite to our exhibitions Expanding Horizons: Celebrating 20 Years of the Hartford Steam Boiler Collection and Centennial of the Lyme Art Association Gallery, as well as online with a variety of programs, workshops, and lectures.

Our ability to be nimble during this time is a reflection of the consistent and enthusiastic support from you, our community. We are in awe of how you have stewarded us through the pandemic with your visitation to our exhibitions, your patronage of our store, and your financial and service contributions. In fact, we are thrilled to share that we concluded 2020 with record-breaking levels of individual support to the Annual Fund! This support allows us to serve you even in a reduced capacity and in confidence that we will weather these trying times together.

During these months as we transition from winter to spring, we often feel a sense of renewal. The arctic air is not yet gone and we always have snow and ice long after we think we should, impatient for warmer temperatures and the glow of summer. Yet this year, the promise of spring holds potentially more weight than at any other point in our lives. We hope to be able to join together soon with family and friends and celebrate as a community the good work of the Florence Griswold Museum.

See you in the galleries,

Rebekah Beaulieu, Ph.D.

In Loving Memory of Max Belding (1922-2020)

ON NOVEMBER 11, 2020, the Museum lost a dear friend and devoted benefactor, Maxwell (Max) M. Belding, at the age of 98. A longtime resident of Old Lyme with a lifetime of experience in real estate development and finance, Max loved the Museum and actively sought to help this institution realize its full potential as a national center for American art.

Serving as a Trustee and in many advisory roles over three decades, he provided invaluable leadership at critical moments here – including the Museum’s efforts to acquire the last remaining parcel of Florence Griswold's original estate still being privately held. His pledge of support was the catalyst the Museum needed to pursue the landmark acquisition leading to a visionary reimagining of this historic site.

Max was also a crucial leader of the Centennial Campaign that paved the way for the 2001 Krieble Gallery construction and full restoration of the Griswold House. A plaque in honor of Max and his wife Sally (who passed away in 2019) can be found on our riverfront, paying tribute to the Beldings’ leadership in this effort, as well as their love for the Museum and the Lyme landscape.

Max leaves behind a philanthropic legacy that has been transformative not only to this Museum, but to cultural institutions across our state. Ever the gentleman, Max was a beloved figure who exuded warmth and charm to everyone he met. He was one of a kind, and we will forever hold a special place in our hearts for our dear friend, Max.

VOLUNTEER VOICE

Morgan Regan
MEMBER OF THE BENEFIT AND DEVELOPMENT COMMITTEES

Everyone visiting the Florence Griswold Museum can’t help but smile. The delightful gardens, the gorgeous paintings that hang for us to voyeuristically inspect, the delicious food being enjoyed at Café Flo, it all brings such peacefulness and happiness. For me, I feel like I’ve come back to my favorite part of childhood. Growing up just outside of Washington, D.C., lots of family and family friends would visit all summer to take trips to the Smithsonian or the National Gallery of Art, then picnic on the National Mall, and for my cousins and me, we’d plead for ice cream from one of the food carts. It was the perfect summer escape. Walking through the Florence Griswold exhibits, the Wee Faerie Village, and then down to the Old Lyme Ice Cream Shoppe is now my own family’s tradition and makes me happy thinking about my summers in D.C.

Volunteering at the Florence Griswold Museum has been my way to thank and support such a special and wonderful place in our community. The genuine warmth and fun spirits of the volunteers and staff can’t help but make it feel like a real home. I am thrilled to give back to such a lovely place that gives so much to me and my family.

New Acquisition

THROUGH THE GENEROSITY of the A. Phimister Proctor Foundation, Robert W. Vonnoh’s portrait of Margaret “Mody” Daisy Gerow (1875–1942) has been added to the permanent collection. The foundation, organized by the descendants of the American sculptor, is dispersing its collections to public institutions to broaden knowledge of his work.

The sitter appears dressed for her marriage to Proctor (1860–1950) in Chicago on September 27, 1893. The two had met during the World’s Columbian Exhibition. Gerow was a member of the so-called “White Rabbits” assisting sculptor Lorado Taft and Proctor contributed nearly two dozen of his own sculptures to the fair. Gerow set aside her art career to support Proctor’s work as a leading sculptor of animals, traveling with him to Paris not long after this portrait was painted. Gerow was a good friend of sculptor Bessie Potter, another protégé of Taft, who went on to marry Vonnoh in 1899.

This example of Vonnoh’s work in the grand manner enhances our collection, which does not yet include a portrait by him at this scale. As the likeness of an artist friend, this painting echoes Vonnoh’s powerful John Severinus Conway, his portrait of wife Bessie at work in their shared studio, and Vonnoh’s own charcoal self-portrait, all in the collection. Mody Proctor would go on to model for Bessie Potter Vonnoh, posing with her infant son for A Young Mother (1896), one of the artist’s best-known sculptures. Later, the Proctors lived in Wilton, Connecticut, from 1928 to 1936.

2021 Exhibitions

WE HOPE to see you many times throughout the year, especially to enjoy these two unique exhibitions. From June 4 to September 19, consider interconnectedness and solitude using works from the Museum’s permanent collection in Social & Solitary: Reflections on Art, Isolation, and Renewal.

From October 2, 2021 through January 24, 2022, join us for Revisiting America: The Prints of Currier & Ives. Take a close look at works that perpetuated Victorian ideals in Currier & Ives’ depictions of family, history, politics, and urban and suburban life. Their work served as important records of a nation in the midst of an extraordinary transformation from a rural and agricultural landscape to an industrialized and urbanized global power. Revisiting America is organized by Joslyn Art Museum, Omaha, Nebraska.
Great Grant News

THE MUSEUM IS GRATEFUL to have been recently awarded a COVID Relief Fund for Museums grant totaling $45,454.50 to help offset the financial hardships caused by the pandemic. This grant was awarded by Connecticut Humanities, with funding provided by the Connecticut State Department of Economic and Community Development (DECD)/Connecticut Office of the Arts (COA) through an allocation to the State of Connecticut from the CARES Act. This grant comes in addition to previous CARES Act funding we received via CT Humanities in May. Both grants were designed to provide rapid-response relief to nonprofits forced to close during the pandemic, and we are tremendously grateful for our state’s commitment to helping its cultural sites survive and thrive during this challenging season.

We are also pleased to announce the award of a $5,000 marketing grant through the Eastern Regional Tourism District to create a promotional campaign to help visitors discover both the FloGris and our neighbor, the Lyme Art Association. This partnership will strengthen Southeastern Connecticut’s position as an important drawing card for day-trippers and “staycationers.” We are appreciative of programs like this that allow us to promote the vast cultural attractions our corner of the state has to offer.

Annual Fund Shatters 2020 Goal

THIS WAS CERTAINLY a unique year for fundraising across the country and here at the Museum! Our goal for the 2020 Annual Fund (which supports our day-to-day operations) was originally set for $350,000. But with the arrival of the pandemic in March, we scaled back to a more attainable goal of $275,000, uncertain about the ramifications of this crisis on fundraising.

Remarkably, with the loyal support of our members, friends, and Trustees, we ended up raising over $360,000 for the 2020 Annual Fund—meeting and exceeding our original goal! This is a truly outstanding achievement, and we are honored that so many of you chose to make the Museum a major giving priority this year. From the bottom of our hearts, thank you for helping us surpass our goals in this incredibly difficult year!

Charitable Gift Annuity Rates

ESTABLISHING A CHARITABLE GIFT annuity is a wonderful way to help the Museum while earning a steady stream of income in retirement.

Each year, the American Council on Gift Annuities (ACGA) sets gift annuity rates that fluctuate dependent on the age of the donor. Through June 30, 2021, rates of return are as follows: Age 60 = 3.9%; Age 70 = 4.7%; Age 75 = 5.4%; Age 80 = 6.5%; and Age 85 = 7.6%.

If you are looking for a great way to make a gift to the Museum, as well as prepare for future income opportunities, a charitable gift annuity is an exceptional option. For more information, please contact Matt Strekel, Director of Development, at matt.strekel@flogris.org.

Artist-in-Residence

THIS SPRING, DANA SHERWOOD will serve as our second Artist-in-Residence. Between April and July, she will be staging and filming material in preparation for her 2022 exhibition, Dana Sherwood: Animal Appetites and Other Encounters in Wildness. The residency and exhibition will be carried out in conjunction with Associate Curator Jenny Parsons.

Sherwood will create a commission inspired by our core story and the Museum’s environmentally-conscious efforts today. For her piece Artist’s Bedroom Bestiary, Sherwood has designed a 3D reproduction of the Florence Griswold House’s ca. 1910 Artist’s Bedroom. It will serve as the outdoor stage for nocturnal visits by the animals who live, usually unseen, in proximity to humans. Artists’ meals in the dining room and on the porch were an important part of the Art Colony boardinghouse experience. Within our archives, stories link humans, animals, and food: Lyme artists often described local animals in anthropomorphic terms, or were foiled by their unreliability as subjects for art. Sherwood will tap into that history through her practice of making playful, evolving attempts to communicate with feral animals through banquets she prepares.

She collaborates with nature to underscore its unpredictability and to encourage audiences to contemplate how animals have adapted to the encroachment of suburban development.

During her residency, Sherwood will compile the infrared video footage she collects into artwork for the exhibition. The resulting film, sculpture installations, and paintings will offer unique opportunities for engaging with significant contemporary discussions around the environment, global food chains, feminism, animal studies, myth, and spirituality.

Strategic Plan Update

WHILE IT SEEMS counterintuitive, the isolation of the pandemic allowed our staff and Trustees, along with other community members, the opportunity to make significant progress in developing our new Strategic Plan. At the Board of Trustees’ December meeting the five foundational goals of the new plan were passed. Now over the next few months, staff will work with the Planning Committee and volunteer leadership to hone strategies and objectives that will help accomplish those goals moving forward.

Many thanks to everyone willing to be interviewed in this planning process, as well as those who attended virtual and in-person workshops that helped inform our strategies. We also want to thank those who took time to fill out a member survey; we were overwhelmed by the tremendous response received.

Here’s to the future and wonderful things to come as we grow together!

Staff News

CONGRATULATIONS TO STAFF celebrating anniversaries in 2021—Business Manager Therese Kus, 40 years; Curator Amy Kurtz Lansing, 15 years; Manager of Membership & Individual Giving Nathaniel Greene, 10 years; Associate Curator Jenny Parsons, 5 years.

“I’m not sure many institutions can boast the longevity of staff as we can,” notes Director Becky Beaulieu. “We are fortunate to have people devote much of their careers to the Museum—they are truly its heart and soul.”

WISHES FOR HAPPINESS and health to three new (tiny) members of our FloGris family and their parents. Legairre Graysen Radden, born October 29 to Amber (Visitor Services Associate) and Legairre Radden. Hudson William Kunkel, born November 11 to Shelby Chadwick (Education Assistant) and her husband Matt Kunkel. Grace Penelope Parsons, born in December to Jenny (Associate Curator), Tim, and big sister Molly Parsons.
New Online Exhibition Launched

Hauling and Harrowing: Edward Volkert and the Connecticut Farm features paintings, sketches, historic footage, and biography of the artist who became known as “America’s cattle painter.” The exhibition can be accessed through the Museum’s home page and joins a robust list of titles and virtual tours that encourage visitors to delve deeper into a variety of topics, from current and past exhibitions to schoolgirl needlework, the later years of photographer Walker Evans, and much more.

Hauling and Harrowing was made possible by a grant from Connecticut Humanities.

Expanding Perspectives on American Art: A Springtime Scholar Series

Series Fee: $100 for 10 lectures (members $90)  •  Individual lectures are $12 (members $10)

The Museum's traditional onsite Winter Studies class has been reimagined as a virtual springtime lecture series to take advantage of the new and exciting scholarship offered in the current exhibition Expanding Horizons: Celebrating 20 Years of the Hartford Steam Boiler Collection. Expanding Perspectives on American Art features ten virtual lectures offering current scholarship on topics ranging from the American watercolor movement and folk art to African American studies and ecocriticism. Speakers will also focus on works of art in the Museum's collection.

Lecture #1

Wednesday, March 17, 11am

Exhibiting Nature’s Nation: The Arrival of Ecocritical Art History

Alan C. Bradaddock, Ralph H. Wark Associate Professor of Art History, William & Mary, Williamsburg, VA

“Ecocriticism” in art history expands understanding of both historical and contemporary art by incorporating knowledge about ecology, environmental history, and environmental justice. Bradaddock, co-curator of Nature’s Nation, will discuss the exhibition, its reception, and future directions in ecocritical art history.

Lecture #2

Wednesday, March 24, 11am

A Mother Daughter Conversation: Lilian Westcott Hale and Nancy Hale

Erica Hirshler, Croll Senior Curator of American Paintings, Museum of Fine Arts, Boston.

Unlike many women of her day, painter Lilian Hale continued to develop her own career after her marriage and the birth of her daughter Nancy in 1908. She used her as a model from the very start, depicting her in charcoal and in oil from infancy to adulthood. Hirshler discusses how the two women saw themselves and one another in the Flo Gris’s luminous Hail, Woman Resting.

Lecture #3

Wednesday, March 31, 11am

Self-Taught Artists, Cultural Nationalism, and Intervar Modernism

Katharine Jentleson, PhD, Merrie and Dan Boone Curator of Folk and Self-Taught Art, High Museum of Art, Atlanta, GA

This talk will consider how self-taught artists—both contemporary and historical—have redefined longstanding anxieties about originality in American art and created a more inclusive definition of who could be an artist in the United States. This talk will consider how “gatecrashers” such as Grandma Moses and Horace Pippin paved the way for future generations of self-taught artists to diversify the changing canon of American art.

Lecture #4

Wednesday, April 7, 11am

The Raw, The Cooked, and The Manufactured: Plants in Constructing American Identity

Foster explores the role of plants in constructing American identity, as both organic form and cultural symbol, in the work of nineteenth-century American painter John Frederick Kensett. In the artist’s Study of a Burdock Plant, one discovers a multi-layered view into the conventions of nineteenth-century landscape painting, contemporary ideas about horticulture and herbal medicine, and the emblematic power of plants in constructing American identity.

Lecture #5

Wednesday, April 14, 11am

Edwin Shepard Bartholomew’s Sappho and the Skin of Sculpture

Caitlin Meehye Beach, Assistant Professor, Art History, Fordham University and Andrew W. Mellon Fellow, Department of European Sculpture and Decorative Arts, Metropolitan Museum of Art

Around 1855, the Connecticut-born sculptor Edwin Shepard Bartholomew carved a bust of Sappho, the ancient Greek lyric poet known for her verses on love and longing. Using the smooth, supple surface of the sculpture’s marble “skin” as a point of departure, this talk considers the ways the aesthetics of neoclassicism shaped understandings of race, gender, sexuality, and desire in the nineteenth century.

Lecture #6

Wednesday, April 21, 11am

Amy Kurtz Lansing, Curator, Florence Griswold Museum, Old Lyme, CT

Lansing shares her perspective on paintings by Worthington Whittredge and Ralph Earl that reveals what more we can learn about art by considering it as a special kind of material object. How do the physical characteristics of these paintings and of the items depicted in the compositions suggest deeper meanings for each work of art?

Lecture #7

Wednesday, April 28, 11am

Expanding Horizons: American Artists Discover Watercolors

Foster explores the complexity of plant life, as both organic form and cultural symbol, in the work of nineteenth-century American painter John Frederick Kensett. In the artist’s Study of a Burdock Plant, one discovers a multi-layered view into the conventions of nineteenth-century landscape painting, contemporary ideas about horticulture and herbal medicine, and the emblematic power of plants in constructing American identity.

Lecture #8

Wednesday, May 5, 11am

Peaky Crop or Cure-all?: The Power of Plants in the Art of John Frederick Kensett

Jeffrey Richmond-Moll, Curator of American Art, Georgia Museum of Art, University of Georgia, Athens, GA

Richmond-Moll explores the complexity of plant life, as both organic form and cultural symbol, in the work of nineteenth-century American painter John Frederick Kensett. In the artist’s Study of a Burdock Plant, one discovers a multi-layered view into the conventions of nineteenth-century landscape painting, contemporary ideas about horticulture and herbal medicine, and the emblematic power of plants in constructing American identity.

Lecture #9

Wednesday, May 12, 11am

A 2020 Vision: Rethinking the Hartford Steam Boiler Collection of American Art

Lenny Parsons, Associate Curator, Florence Griswold Museum, Old Lyme, CT

Parsons, curator of the exhibition, Expanding Horizons: Celebrating 20 Years of the Hartford Steam Boiler Collection, discusses her approach to embracing fresh interpretations of this American art collection. Hear about some of the new discoveries made through research, including works by William Johnston, John Henry Twachtman, Lilian Westcott Hale, George de Forest Brush, and Harriet Whitney Frishmuth.
